7.0 INTRODUCTION.

Hon. Speaker,

This being a new Assembly (Third Assembly) constitution of Committees is of paramount importance as is the practice in all common wealth legislatures as it is a means of establishing institutional leadership and providing services to the people as provided for in the Constitution.

The value and benefit accruing from the use of Committees, lie in the fact that they perform functions which, the House is not fitted to perform in plenary, such as: -

- (i) sitting as frequently as is desirable, including, sitting away from the precincts of the Assembly for longer hours;
- (ii) summoning persons to present oral evidence and written memoranda or documents;
- (iii) availing an environment that can facilitate presentation of details, sifting through evidence and formulating reasoned conclusions, consistent with the both the statute and procedure;
- (iv) carrying out inspection tours, inquiry on matters out of which reports with recommendations are submitted to the House; and,
- (v) forming sub-Committees for the effective and efficient discharge of varied issues within the mandate of the Committees

These functions are more efficiently carried out by small group of legislators.

Honorable Speaker,

Among the several advantages of Committees, include, the possibility of several of them operating at the same time, thus enabling many matters to be dealt with concurrently and expeditiously. Overall, by concentrating on specific matters or subjects, Committees also offer the benefits of specialization to both Members and staff. The conspicuous advantage that of Committees in common wealth legislative houses is the ability they provide for the Legislature to delve into and deal with virtually all sectors and units of departments within the Executive, by having these assigned to Committees other than dealing with them at Plenary.

10.0 COMMITTEE CHALLENGES

The Committee on selection faces some challenges during the selection process including the following: -

1. Assembly parties take longer time to agree on the nomination of Members which delays constitution of committees.
2. There is a limited number of committees as provided for in the Standing orders to cater for all members of the Third Assembly.
3. The provision in law to cater for two third gender rule is proving to be a challenge to implement, due to the numbers of the lady honorable members in the 3rd Assembly and also putting into consideration the number of committees vis a vis the limitations in standing order 154(3).
4. The Committee has limited mandate to recommend changes to the list of nominations because it's the parliamentary parties who make the nominations.

11.0 COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

The committee came up with the following recommendations; -

- i. Consensus building in consultation is Key in executing our role as members of the County Assembly.
- ii. There is need to for the committee on procedure and rules to increase membership to the Committee on Public Accounts and investments from the current five (5) to make it nine (9) to cater for, more members and also enable the committee undertake its work effectively.

- iii. The County Assembly committee on procedure and rules should move with speed and divide the role of some committees with broad specter e.g. Agriculture, Water and Irrigation and the Lands, Infrastructure and Urban Development to two committees to ease its broad duties in view of the departments contained.
- iv. The County Assembly Service Board should ensure continuous capacity building for both members and staff so as to develop competencies and skills that can make quality legislations and at long term make the Assembly effective in achieving its constitutional mandate and vision.
